Magazine Profile

First published in 1996, PROFESSIONAL SKIPPER magazine is the only specialised marine publication that focuses on the maritime industry, from small craft to large ships. These include coastal shipping, tugs, barges, ferries, tourist and sportfishing craft and commercial fishing vessels. Port companies and the boat and shipbuilding industry, including the luxury white boat market, are also featured.

PROFESSIONAL SKIPPER is published bi-monthly with topical articles about the maritime industry and new vessels, Maritime New Zealand accidents, Transport Accident Investigation Commission reports, letters to the editor, news and views with a little fishing. Plus our regular columnists, who are experts in their professional fields, such as maritime law and industry training. We welcome industry participation and encourage contributions from all sectors.

The magazine is also finding favour in men's interest and with many recreational boat owners who enjoy the diverse content and who like to keep up to date with all things maritime.

Our editor, Keith Ingram, has spent more than 45 years in the marine industry and has a unique understanding of the maritime industry issues and a wealth of experience to draw on.

PROFESSIONAL SKIPPER is circulated by direct mail to subscribers and is available from all leading bookshops.
